Exciting times for the Cleanevent Group

Following the recent restructure of the 'Cleanevent Group Australia', it is with great pleasure to formally announce the appointment of Chris Katsiavos to the position of CEO.

In a formal address to the staff at the South Melbourne head office, Chris Katsiavos said.

"I'm very privileged to be entrusted in the role of the first 'Cleanevent Group CEO' of the Australian Division. It's an exciting opportunity for me and I am looking forward to the future of Cleanevent, as I am sure we are certain to turn each business opportunity into a success. I feel we have a great caliber of people in our team, and I look forward to working with everyone one of you. I feel that there are fantastic opportunities for growth, in Australia, in our business, in our market".

With this appointment, sees a new executive team that will lead the Australian Business including:

- Andrew Stephens, Chief Financial Officer & Deputy Group Finance Director
- Steven Webber, Chief Operating Officer
- Paul Lovett, Group General Manager Business Development and Marketing

The new structure has also seen the appointment of Terry Hooton as NSW State Manager and Tony Archer as QLD & NT State Manager.

In response to the recent restructure, Nicko Mavro, Managing Director & Group CEO commented.

"We are looking forward to better team coordination, additional resources and management appointments and of course additional opportunities. This comes with significant investment from us and we know that it will assist us in our commitment to strategic growth but will also ensure that we continue to push the barriers of service delivery and customer service".
